

With all poles at the same height, we can create a flat surface between the poles

Raising the centre pole raises the 'surface'

Removing the centre pole causes the surface to drop

